Failure of which will subject the container to demurrage after applicable free time.

When the ocean carrier is unable, for reasons beyond its control (i.e. when an entire port area is closed due to unusual circumstances: civil unrest, labor strike, severe weather etc.) to release or delivery containerized-cargo, within the allowable free time, no demurrage shall be assessed by the ocean carrier on said containerized-cargo for a period of time equal to the period of the delay.

III.

When the consignee is prevented by factors beyond its control (such as, but not limited to, civil unrest, labor strike, trucker strike, severe weather etc.), which affect an entire port area, to remove containerized-cargo beyond the allowable free time, demurrage shall continue to be assessed, beyond free time, by the ocean carrier.

Upon notification of the cargo's arrival at the destination, cargo will be subject to demurrage terms and charges as stated in Section 1 in its entirety.
